Dear Customer,

Certain low phase noise Oscillators and Oscillator assemblies are controlled for U.S. export purpose under the Export Administration Regulations (EAR). The Vectron products OX-204 and OX-205 fall in this category. Such items are listed on the U.S. Dept. of Commerce Controlled Commodity List (CCL) with an Export Commodity Classification number (ECCN) 3A001.b.10. Since such items are not classified as EAR99 which require no license when exported from the U.S., the low phase noise oscillator with an ECCN 3A001.b.10 may require an export license when exporting from the U.S. or re-exporting from abroad.

However per the U.S. export regulations, certain license exceptions might be available. For the ECCN 3A001.b.10 a permissible license exception is GBS (Group B Shipments) or shipments to countries listed on the Group B country list. The current list is shown on the following page¹.

If you should have any additional questions, please feel free to contact the undersigned or rarvikar@vectron.com.

Regards,
